Werzalit tabletops are manufactured with a recycled wood chip core that is strongly bonded together with a high resin content before a smooth closed film is homogenously pressed onto it. The tops are made in a mould which ensures that the core is sealed and can therefore be used both indoors and outdoors as they are weatherproof and UV resistant. The finished surface is easy to clean and satisfies the hygiene requirements of the catering industry. They are practically impervious to mechanical, thermal and chemical influences and are heat resistant to 180 degree centigrade.

The durability of werzalit table tops satisfies the requirements of DIN EN 438 for kitchen work surfaces. However, they are not infinitely scratch-proof. Hard, rough, sharp edged or mineral based objects, such as metal, stoneware or unglazed porcelain can cause irreparable scratches and scrapes on the table tops. However, this does not impair their usability or long service life.

Tops are available in:
